

European Collection Agency A/S GDPR–Policy

European Collection Agency A/S (ECA) is a B2B office, meaning that our clients are other businesses. ECA only processes a very limited amount of personal data and never sensitive personal data.

Below, you will find information on how ECA processes personal data in general.

Data responsibility

ECA has data responsibility for the information processed by ECA, and ECA is thereby responsible that any personal data is processed in compliance with the data protection regulations.

Obligation to keep records of processing activities

ECA employs less than 250 employees and only processes personal data on a limited scope. ECA is therefore exempt from the GDPR's article on record keeping of processing activities. Consequently, following Article 30, part 5 of the GDPR, ECA is not obligated to keep internal logs on the personal information processed by ECA.

Storing

ECA will not store personal data longer than necessary. Personal data will be deleted as soon as these are no longer needed.

Internal guidelines

ECA has appointed a data responsible employee, and all employees are informed about ECA's privacy policy (in writing and through instructions).

CLIENTS' RIGHTS

Information duty

The data protection regulation secures the personal rights, when ECA processes personal data about a given person. The regulation imposes ECA to inform a person that we have or mean to collect and process his/her personal data.

When ECA processes data about a given person, this person is therefore informed which data is processed and the purpose of this processing.

Right to information

Any person has a right to know, which personal data ECA has about said person, and as a general principle any person has a right to see own personal data.

Any person has a right to ask that ECA will correct or delete any own personal data, if said person believes this personal data is incorrect.

Requests for information, amendments or deletion of own personal data can be directed to Mr. Peter Bille Krogh (bille@ecagency.dk)(General Manager) or Ms. Trine Bech (trine@ecagency.dk)(data responsible employee).
